Dr S P Sharma
Ms. Manpreet Kaur

As a fastest growing economy in the G20 nations, India will play a significant role to convert uncertainties into opportunities. India's Presidency would be impactful for bringing stability at the most crucial juncture of geo-political developments, high inflation and slowing economic growth.

Proud moments for the Indians as country have assumed the G20 Presidency on 1st December 2022. Indonesia handed over the G20 Presidency to India at the closing ceremony of the Bali Summit on 16th November 2022. Renewable Energy Careers that Help the Planet

Nidhi Praasad

Renewable power is booming, as innovation brings down costs and starts to deliver on the promise of a clean energy future. Choose a green career to create a better world! Renewable energy is good for the planet and for people, but what is it exactly?

WHAT IS RENEWABLE ENERGY?

Renewable energy is often referred to as clean energy. Renewable energy also termed alternative energy, simply means the energy from a source that is not depleted when used, such as wind or solar power. It is generated from natural resources-such as sunlight, wind, rain, tides, and geothermal heat. This energy cannot be exhausted and is constantly renewed. And, what is even more important, they cause little climate or environmental damage. Renewable energy is clean, affordable, and reliable, and has got the potential to counter poverty and climate change.

Fossil fuels such as oil, coal, and natural gas on the contrary are available in finite quantities only. As we keep extracting them, they will run out sooner or later. Although they are produced in natural processes, they do not replenish as quickly as we humans use them. India is nature's favoured region with an abundance of energy produced by sun, wind, water, and biomass. New and renewable energy is the only solution to fight the hazardous effects of technology.

Since 2011, renewable energy is growing faster than all other energy forms. The number of jobs in renewable energy worldwide increased in 2020, despite the huge economic disruptions caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. In an annual report on clean energy employment, the International Renewable Energy Agency (IRENA) and the International Labour Organization (ILO) said there were 12 million jobs in renewable energy and its supply chains last year, a third of them in solar power. That was a rise from 11.5 million jobs in 2019.

WHY RENEWABLE ENERGY IS IMPORTANT?

Key benefits of renewable energy for people and the planet

Like any human activity, all energy sources have an impact on our environment. However,

Towards Inclusive Growth and Development

Dr. Shashi Rani

International Day of Persons with Disability is being celebrated every year on 3rd December Globally. The aim of this celebration is to identify possible areas of intervention, creation of sensitive policies, advocacy and campaign for inclusive society. It is in the coherence with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) which came into effect in January 2016, and they will continue to guide United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) policy and funding until 2030. India is signatory to it and is committed to global society agenda to reduce all forms of Inequality. The Sustainable Development Goals are focusing on global efforts to end poverty, to end discrimination and to ensure peace and wellbeing of all. In context of inclusion the Goal 10 of Sustainable Development is "to reduce inequality within and among countries". The Goal 16 of the Sustainable Development is dedicated to the promotion of peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development, the provision of access to justice for all, and building effective, accountable institutions at all levels.

United Nations launched Disability Inclusion Strategy in 2019. Disability in the population is a multi-dimensional issue. It is generally defined from biomedical approach but along with it there are many socio-economic approaches that are equally important in the area of disability. WHO defined disability as "an umbrella term, covering impairments, activity limitations, and participation restrictions. Impairment is a problem in body function or structure; an activity limitation is a difficulty encountered by an individual in executing a task or action; while a participation restriction is a problem experienced by an individual in involvement in life situations. Thus disability is a complex phenomenon, reflecting an interaction between features of a person's body and features of the society in which he or she lives." Further the WHO estimated that more than six hundred million people across the globe live with disabilities of various types due to chronic diseases, injuries, violence, infectious diseases, malnutrition, and other causes related to poverty.

In India according to the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act, 2016, "Person with Disability" means a person with long term physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairment which, in interaction with barriers, hinders his full and effective participation in society equally with others, and "Person with benchmark disability" means a person with not less than forty per cent of a specified disability where specified disability has not been defined in measurable terms and includes a person with disability where specified disability has been defined in measurable terms, as certified by the certifying authority. The Act enhanced the range of disabilities and it covering around 21 forms of defined disabilities. The specified disabilities in this Act are Blindness, Low-vision, Leprosy Cured persons, Hearing Impairment (deaf and hard of hearing), Locomotor Disability, Dwarfism, Intellectual Disability, Mental Illness, Autism Spectrum Disorder, Cerebral Palsy, Muscular Dystrophy, Chronic Neurological conditions, Specific Learning Disabilities, Multiple Sclerosis, Speech and Language disability, Thalassaemia, Haemophilia, Sickle Cell disease, Multiple Disabilities including deaf-blindness, Acid Attack victims and Parkinson's disease. The Central Government have power In case of addition of more disabilities.

The International Classification for Measuring Health and Disability

The International Classification of Functioning, Disability and Health, known more commonly as ICF, is a classification of health and health-related domains. ICF is the WHO framework for measuring health and disability at both individual and population levels. ICF was officially endorsed by all 191 WHO Member States in the Fifty-fourth World Health Assembly on 22 May 2001 as the international standard to describe and measure health and disability. As the functioning and disability of an individual occurs in a context, per cent as against 2.01 in women. The urban and rural difference in the population of the persons with disability is over 18.0 million in the rural areas and 8.1 million in the urban areas. In the social groups the data revealed that 2.45 per cent belongs to the Scheduled Castes (SCs), 2.05 per cent to the Scheduled Tribes (STs) and 2.18 per cent to other than SCs/STs.

Marginalisation and Exclusion

It is known that across the regions people with disability are exposed to multiple barriers, from personal to social life there are many difficulties and challenges. The International Classification of Functioning, Disability and Health, the framework of WHO is broadly divided in two parts with two components in each part. First, Functioning and Disability, including-Body functions and Structures & Activities and Participation. Second, Contextual factors including - Environmental factors & Personal factors. From this framework point of view the people with disabilities are always under multiple burden of social barriers, first due to their own difficulties and second due to the social factors. The routine life challenges are generally not in a public domain and society overlooks many important aspects which could be matter of concern for policy making. Therefore, the social groups those are at margin such as people with disability are more prone to get deprived from their basic rights for survival, education, employment, growth and development. In the absence of inclusive infrastructural arrangement, assistance, lack of resources and opportunities of participation and engagement, the benefits of nation's development and growth is not reaching out to them equally. The people with disability are marginalised and deprived of equal opportunities in comparison to other dominant groups of Indian society. From the point of vulnerability the age, gender, class, caste and region are some contextual factors that may affect the individual's capacity to deal with difficult situations of life. In the case of people with disability, they are not only victim of social barriers, stigma and discrimination, but also due to their social identity. It hampers their capacity to access educational and employment opportunity to fulfil the basic needs for survival. If we look at the disability from gendered angle, the structural inequalities that are existing in our society due to patriarchal social system impose several restrictions on women because of their gender. Their personal and social rights are being overlooked and violated in absence of strong social and legal protection. The gendered roles expected from women makes women with disability more vulnerable in comparison to other women and men. In all possible personal and social matters such as health, survival, education, marriage, sexuality, reproduction, employment and public life, women with disability having more chances of violation of their basic rights. They are not only deprived of fair chances of survival and growth but also for leading quality life with dignity.

ICF also includes a list of environmental factors. The ICF covered some broad components such as body functions and structure, activities (related to tasks and actions by an individual) and participation (involvement in a life situation), and additional information on severity and environmental factors.

Socio-demographic Factors and Prevalence of Disability

According to Census of India (2011), 26.8 million people are under the population of persons with disability, this constitute 2.21 per cent of the total population of India. The matter of concern that there is an increase in the population of persons with disability it increased from 21.9 million in 2001 to 26.8 million in 2011 over the decade. There are more men in comparison to women, as per the Census 2011. There are 14.9 million men with disabilities as compared to 11.9 million women. The percentage of men with disabilities is 2.41

Going ahead, India must provide the leadership role to save the world from the global economic and financial uncertainties. The epicenter of the current crisis is the Russia-Ukraine conflict and resultant sharp jump in the US dollar which will have a significant impact on the World economic growth. At this juncture, India as a growth leader in the G20 nations must do desired efforts to create stability in the World Economy. India's Presidency in the G20 would be one of the most significant proud moments for India. The fundamentals of the Indian economy are strong as compared with many of the G20 countries. So at this juncture time is most opportune to explore potential in the expansion of production possibilities and enhanced size of the economy.

Towards Inclusive Growth and Development

Right to Quality Life with Social Participation and Engagement

Right to quality of life is a very broad concept and it includes various aspects of life from sense of dignity and worth to be in state of wellbeing. For leading a quality life both subjective and objective interpretation of different aspects of life is crucial and it depends on one's psychosocial context, culture, belief and value system. From a quality of life dimension in case of persons with disability it may include some important factors such as perception and confidence regarding functional ability, psychosocial support and recognition, availability and accessibility of opportunities for growth and development. The positive institutional response and role of state is important. We may say with positive presence of all these stated factors a sense of empowering state is tool to lead quality life. The Preamble to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD)-2006, adopted by the United Nations, describes disability by stating that "Disability results from the interaction between persons with impairments and attitudinal and environmental barriers that hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others. "Therefore if we critically analyse the individual's social position and identity, it may become a major barrier in leading quality life or it can be a powerful source of reclaiming the equal social status. These social identities depend on social response and attitude of people towards another set of people. What is normal and abnormal is completely socially constructed phenomenon, thus people often fall in the trap of socially accepted definition of ability and disability. It becomes a major social barrier for many if it will be accepted without any scientific or rational idea of being able. Further these kind of social responses leads to exclusion of people with disability from social participation and engagements.

Social stigma, discrimination, ignorance and lack of acceptance affect a persons immediate and long-term relations with others and sense of wellbeing. More often it is noticed that due to negative response from society, people with disability are not able to fully participate and engage in the society. Also it hampers the access of the available support systems to maintain routine life. The Socio economic and infrastructural barriers for social participation and engagement are; inaccessibility to care and support, lack of empathy, judgemental and discriminatory practices, lack of resources and opportunity. For example in different social institutions, generally people with disability are ignored in the public functions, social gathering, sports or recreational activities. In this context the infrastructural support, educational awareness programme at various levels with strong policy measures can facilitate the process of participation and acceptance of people with disability with enhanced sensitivity.

Important Initiatives for Protection of Rights of Persons with Disability by Government of India

The Constitution of India binds all citizens in a common thread with sense of security through Fundamental Rights and Directive Principles of State Policy to deliver services in best interest of its citizens with inclusive approach. From the view point of constitutional framework, it is the duty of the government to protect the social and economic interests of the marginalised and excluded sections of the society with various policy, strategies and interventions. The Government of India (Gol) have taken many initiatives through government policy and programmes to create inclusive society by focusing on marginalised sections of society especially for persons with disability.

The Ministry of Social Justice & Empowerment, Government of India (MoSJE), through its programmes and policy formulations facilitates empowerment of the persons with disabilities. The Ministry of Social Justice & Empowerment work along with Ministry of Health & Family Welfare and the Ministry of Education and Ministry of Women and Child Development. This is an important ministerial alliance to work together for the cause of disability.

Rights of Persons with Disabilities (RPWD) Act, 2016 have provisions of setting up Special Courts in each district. The national level fund along with state level funds for welfare of people with disability is announced. State Governments have to setup district-level committees and a separate State Fund arrangements is for the execution of welfare schemes for Persons with Disability. Also central and state level coordination is envisaged in the Act. Other than these efforts, there is Rehabilitation Council of India Act, 1992, Mental Health Care Act, 2017, National Trust for the Welfare of Persons with Autism, Cerebral Palsy, Mental Retardation and Multiple Disabilities Act, 1999.

Among the major initiatives of Gol, there is a scheme for an assistance to people with disability for purchase/fitting of aids and appliances (ADIP). The National Awards for Empowerment of Persons with Disabilities, Accessible India Campaign (AIC) for creating universal accessibility for Persons with Disabilities inbuilt Environment, Transport, and Information & Communication Technology (ICT) ecosystem. The Unique Disability Identification Project is aimed to create national database for PwDs, to issue Unique Disability ID (UDID) Card along with disability certificate to everyone. The National Trust for the Welfare of Persons with Autism, Cerebral Palsy, Mental Retardation and Multiple Disabilities, and Inclusive India Initiative launched. First Indian Sign Language Dictionary of 3000 words, developed by Indian Sign Language Research and Training Centre (ISLRTC), New Delhi. In addition to that various workshops and events are held for information and awareness of public at large.

Need of Support and Assistance for Caregivers

People with disability are generally in the need of support and assistance from significant caregivers. People of different age require different kind of support system and attention from caregivers, their orientation and training can be important tool towards assistance and support of caregivers. At the same time frontline health workers should extend the support to caregivers to overcome from the stressful situation. In this situation it becomes important to orient immediate caregivers about need and support required by people with disability from an individual case perspective. Many times the fair assessment of need and realistic approach gets missed in the process of identifying support system. At the same time all caregivers may not be educated and empowered but to fill up this gap counselling at the time of planning of medical treatment is very much important. The counselling should compulsorily be provided to individuals and family separately and together. In order to create a supportive system for handholding, regular sessions of counselling with family by primary health care workers will be an important step. It can be applied to both rural and urban settings.

Use of Technology and Digital Assistance

The global society become one with the use of technology. The physical and social distances are covered with technology awareness and its use. In the Covid-19 pandemic we have witnessed how technology helps human beings to overcome from individual to social barriers. The telemedicine, helpline numbers and teleconsulting is very much in use and it can be possible only through use of technology. Whether it is a matter of business, health, education or all possible day to day services for daily needs are possible to get through technology. In the area of disability it can be a lifesaving tool to reach out to services, protection, and safety. Technology is having potential for creating enabling environment for people with disability, in case of any impairment and physical inability, it may provide immediate assistance to perform daily life activities. It is also providing economically viable solutions in health, education and employment sectors. It is reducing gaps between individual to individual and in addition to that creating platforms for social participation, meaningful engagement and to stand for each other in solidarity. It can be used for knowledge dissemination, orientation, training for healthcare providers, caregivers, academicians, frontline workers, policy makers and other important stakeholders. With the use of technology monitoring and evaluation of ongoing programmes are possible in timely manner and if required field interventions can be planned with optimal use of resources.

The Way Forward

In the end, we need to ensure proper implementation of policy matters. The need of the hour is to create proper infrastructure to enhance accessibility of public and institutional services. The innovation in designing and planning of infrastructure is required. The need is to strengthen administrative machinery for planning, implementation and monitoring. Active participation of all stakeholders especially families, local administrative & educational bodies, civil society organisations and media are required, orientation and training of the key personnel is an important factor for removing attitudinal barriers and adoption of inclusive approach towards inclusion of People with Disability. Use of all possible means of Information, Communication and Technology (ICT) in regional languages is required for awareness generation and publicity of government policies and schemes for persons with disability. The area of disability is very huge with large scope of interventions. Thus, we need to generate empathetic and sensitive view to create meaningful policies of social inclusion with sense of accountability.

Renewable Energy: Careers That Help ...

the advantages over the devastating impacts of fossil fuels are undeniable: from the reduction of water and land use, less air and water pollution, less wildlife and habitat loss, to no or lower greenhouse gas emissions.

1. Renewable energy emits no or low greenhouse gases. That's good for the climate. The combustion of fossil fuels for energy results in a significant amount of greenhouse gas emissions that contribute to global warming. Most sources of renewable energy result in little to no emissions, even when considering the full life cycle of the technologies.
2. Renewable energy emits no or low air pollutants. That's better for our health. World-wide increase in fossil fuel-based road transport, industrial activity, and power generation (as well as the open burning of waste in many cities) contribute to elevated levels of air pollution. In many developing countries, the use of charcoal and fuelwood for heating and cooking also contributes to poor indoor air quality. Particles and other air pollutants from fossil fuels literally asphyxiate cities. According to studies by the World Health Organisation, their presence above urban skies is responsible for millions of premature deaths and costs billions.
3. Renewable energy comes with low costs. That's good for keeping energy prices at affordable levels.
4. Renewable energy creates jobs.

COURSES AND ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA FOR RENEWABLE ENERGY

Sustainable energy technologies and the need to reduce carbon emissions are at the top of the global environmental agenda. A master's degree in renewable energy will equip students with the expertise needed to address the challenges faced by a growing demand for energy. You'll gain expertise in clean energy sources, practical power systems, renewable energy technology, climate change, and energy management systems.

The most popular courses for Renewable Energy in India are:

1. B.Sc. Renewable Energy is a 3-year long undergraduate program that is further divided into 6 semesters. The main objective of the program is to provide students with brief knowledge about the usage and implementation of renewable sources to encounter the rapid demand of the generation. Entrance exams are conducted for admission to this course by the various colleges. The program gives us knowledge about the resources that do not exhaust human lifetimes like Hydro Energy, Biomass, Geothermal Energy, and many more. For B.Sc in renewable energy, a candidate must have passed 10+2 examinations in the science stream from a recognised board or its equivalent.

2. B.Tech Renewable and Sustainable Energy Engineering. For admission to a 4-year B. Tech course in Renewable Energy, students with Physics, Chemistry, and Mathematics as compulsory subjects at the 10+2 level and with 60 percent marks can apply. Candidates having a Bachelor's Degree in the disciplines of EE/ ECE/ EEE/ Mechanical/ Chemical/ Instrumentation & Control Engineering/ Mechatronics/ Production/ Aerospace/ Renewable Energy with a valid GATE score are eligible for admission. Candidates, who have an M.Sc. degree in subjects like Physics / Chemistry / Material Science with a minimum of 55% marks are also eligible for admission to take this course.
3. B. Tech + M. Tech (Dual Degree) in Renewable Energy is a five-year course where students have to study all the essential subjects of either course. This course is a technology-based and research-oriented program where students learn the advanced areas of their respective fields and help the students to become industry-ready. This degree course follows a semester-based pattern where each year consists of two semesters.
4. Master of Technology (M.Tech.) in Renewable Energy is a 2-year-long program. This course also follows the semester-based pattern where each academic year has two semesters. In this course, students have to study a lot in detail to get in-depth knowledge of the following subjects in this curriculum. However, the research area is less as compared to the dual degree program, and the advanced technology-oriented area is more.

Entrance Exam for Renewable Energy

The eligible candidates must take the entrance test and qualify for the respective entrance exam to get admission to the institutes of their choice.

For Undergraduate (UG) courses:

JEE Main (Joint Entrance Examination)

Just Like other engineering courses, students from all over India can get admission to various institutes for the Renewable Energy course through JEE Main ranking. There are not many colleges to choose from for Renewable Energy during the UG course. However, only a few institutes like Integral University, Lucknow (Dual Degree in B.Tech and M.Tech), and Ansal University, Gurgaon (B.Tech in Mechanical Engineering with specialization in Renewable energy) takes students in the UG courses through JEE Main exam.

For Post Graduate Course:

GATE- (Graduate Aptitude Test in Engineering) is an all-India examination conducted by the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore, and all seven Indian Institutes of Technology (IITs).

Through this entrance exam, students can get admission to different institutes all over India in several postgraduate courses (M. Tech, and ME), including Renewable Energy. However, a few colleges also take candidates in the respective course by conducting their entrance examinations.

Several initiatives are taken by the Government towards Renewable Energy. The government of India is taking various measures to utilise natural sources of energy and has plans to add 500 gigawatts (GW) of renewable energy to its electricity grid by 2030 in a bid to clean up the air in its cities and lessen the rapidly growing economy's dependence on coal. India has an ambitious target of installing 175GW by 2022 out of which 100GW is through solar power. India is the world's third-largest emitter of greenhouse gases. To cut emissions and clean air, it now pledges to increase 40 percent of its installed capacity by 2030 which is a sharp increase from 21.4 percent at present. It will be a small step to satiate the energy appetite of its ever-growing population.

National Institute of Solar Energy (NISE), along with the Green Jobs sector skills council is taking some wonderful initiatives to create awareness and enter into the arena of research and development in Renewable Energy.

A big focus is on training for clean energy jobs. More than 100,000 people have been trained between 2015 and 2021. 78,000 trainees have been certified under the national-level solar energy Suryamitra training program. The Skills Council for Green Jobs continues to integrate environmental awareness into job training across skilling programs through "Green National Occupation Standards" for the workplace.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES IN RENEWABLE ENERGY

To meet the target set by the Government of India for renewable energy, there is a huge demand for equipment manufacturing in the renewable energy sector which leads to a requirement for a large number of skilled manpower. Manpower requirement is not limited to only the manufacturing sector but it is needed in every area including Installation, System Designing, Operations & Maintenance, Financing, and Marketing.

Job opportunities in renewable energy sources including solar energy, wind solar, and offshore wind are opening up all the time. It's not only an appealing career path for recent graduates but also for those who are currently working in other energy sectors such as oil and gas too.

The reason that there are so many new jobs being created in renewables is simply that there's more budget being put into developments in sustainable energy. Governments are investing more in renewable energy sources such as wind turbines, with some even offering a tax reduction for those who invest in renewable resources such as solar panels. Globally, the attitude towards the energy sector is changing, and renewables is leading the way.

Working in the energy sector will, on the whole, provide you with a good salary and job security. There's an array of opportunities for individuals to work their way up the career ladder to project manager or other senior roles.

Perhaps more importantly, though, lucrative job opportunities are available across a variety of specialisms, not only engineering or niche renewables roles but Job opportunities can be found in production, IT, finance, law, and research to name just a few. There is truly something for everyone in the energy sector.

The career prospects are very bright for India. India has been facing rising fuel prices, energy insecurity, and other environmental & climate-related problems. Renewable energy offers a critical solution to India's burgeoning energy demand challenges. Moreover, renewable energy technologies are more labour-intensive than more mechanised fossil fuel technologies, as demonstrated in more mature markets, and can provide a tremendous opportunity to create local jobs. In 2015, more than 8.1 million people got employed in renewable energy worldwide.

One of the main reasons why you should choose a career in renewable energy is that it's personally rewarding. You will be involved in projects that will be changing the world as we know it. Renewable energy sources such as solar energy and offshore wind will play a critical role in the future of the world's energy production. You can contribute to the production of new, clean, energy sources that reduce emissions and climate change. By aiding in the development and distribution of renewable energies, you will actively be a part of a global movement.

There are lots of things to learn in this course, such as energy infrastructure, rational use of energy, energy conservation, and management, energy policies, energy regulations, energy-environment interface, and many more.

SCOPE OF RENEWABLE ENERGY

According to the latest report from the International Renewable Energy Agency (IRENA), the number of people employed in the renewable energy sector across the globe could rise to 24 million by 2030. According to forecasts, global investment will reach USD 1.5 trillion per year in 2030. The report also stated that renewables will add about $20 trillion to the global economy, and will create about 6 million jobs by 2050. According to World Economic Forum, the Advanced Energy vertical is a $1.5 trillion global industry, almost twice the size of the global airline industry, and nearly equal to worldwide apparel revenue.

The majority of renewable energy jobs are available in India, Japan, Brazil, the U.S., and Germany. In fact, 62% of all renewable energy jobs are based in Asia, as installation and manufacturing continue to shift to the region. Among the clean energy sectors, solar photovoltaic (PV) was the largest employer in 2019, employing 3.1 million people - a 12% increase compared to 2017. Liquid biofuels (1.7 million jobs), solid biomass (0.7 million), and biogas (0.3 million) were also major employers, as reported by IRENA.

Upcoming Trends

The scope of Renewable Energy in India as well as abroad is pretty broad. There is an ongoing trend to use more and more Renewable Energy and to give more importance to it all over the world. Therefore, more field works along with research works are being undertaken in this field opening a number of opportunities for an aspirant to explore different fields. Thus, the scope of renewable energy is ample.

Candidates after qualifying for their respective renewable energy courses get placed in several organisations (both government and private), and they will be able to find excellent job opportunities along with good packages. Students might opt for research as there is an option to follow this path too. However, there are jobs available in colleges and universities (both government and private) as professors or lecturers. Therefore, the career prospects of the qualified candidate are brighter.

The energy sector is constantly changing and evolving so we can expect to not only see more demand for work, but also new types of roles created in the future. So, if you're looking for a career that is exciting and encourages innovation - where no day is the same - then renewables is certainly an option worth exploring.

Renewable energy projects require a workforce with diverse backgrounds and skill sets. There are job opportunities for ecologists, biologists, physicists, geologists, architectural and structural engineers, planners, project managers, computer science or electrical engineers, communications professionals,

World Soil Day

An Effort to Save a Unique Ecosystem Sustaining the Planet

World Soil Day is held annually on 5th December as a means to focus attention on the importance of healthy soil and advocating for the sustainable management of soil resources. Since its inception in 2014, the World Soil Day has expanded from 42 events in 2014 to about 781 celebrations in 125 countries in 2021.

Soil nutrient loss is a major soil degradation process threatening nutrition and is recognized as being among the most important problems at a global level for food security and sustainability all around the globe. World Soil Day 2022, and its campaign 'Soils: Where Food Begins', aim to raise awareness of the importance of maintaining healthy ecosystems and human well-being by addressing the growing challenges in soil management, increasing soil awareness, and encouraging societies to improve soil health.

Why is soil important?

Soil is where food begins. Soil is the source of most of our food (a pivotal source of agricultural products) and is central to our planet's life-support system. Soil provides nutrients, water and minerals to plants and trees, stores carbon, and is home to billions of insects, small animals, bacteria, and many other micro-organisms. As per the FAO, a quarter of the planet's biological diversity exists in soil. There are billions of micro-organisms such as bacteria, fungi, and protozoans in the soil, as well as thousands of insects, mites, and worms. More organisms are contained in one tablespoon of healthy soil than there are people on the planet. Therefore, paying attention to soil biodiversity is instrumental for preservation of life on Earth.

Yet, the amount of fertile soil on the planet has been diminishing at an alarming rate, compromising the ability of farmers to grow food to feed a global population that is projected to top nine billion by 2050. As stated by the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), "Soil degradation is a silent process but with huge consequences for humanity. Studies show that about a third of the planet's soils are facing moderate to severe degradation." Therefore, making efforts to maintain the health of the soil is a "crucial ally in ensuring food security and nutrition for all".

Soil is a finite resource as it is non-renewable. It can take hundreds to thousands of years to form one centimetre of soil from parent rock. Poor farming practices, such as extensive tilling, excessive irrigation, overuse of fertilizers, herbicides, and pesticides, deplete soil nutrients faster than they are able to form, leading to loss of soil fertility and degrading soils.

Soil is not just a food source. It also mitigates climate change as it provides resilience to flood and drought. Soil makes up the greatest pool of terrestrial organic carbon, more than double the amount stored in vegetation.

How is India taking care of its soils?

Soil Health Card (SHC) scheme was launched in the country in 2015 to mark the International Year of Soils. The objective is to increase the know-how about soil and soil management, and to reduce the gaps between the scientist/extension personnel as well as farmers. This programme is being operationalised to facilitate status of his/her soil with respect to 12 parameters, namely macro-nutrients N (Nitrogen), P (Phosphorus), K (Potassium); Secondary nutrients S (Sulphur); (micro-nutrients) Zn (Zinc), Fe (Iron), Cu (Copper), Mn (Manganese), Bo (Boron); and physical parameters pH (potential of Hydrogen), EC (Electrical Conductivity), OC (Organic Carbon). Based on this, the SHC also indicates fertilizer recommendations and soil amendment required for the farm.

Objectives of Soil Health Card Scheme

- To issue soil health cards every two years to all farmers, so as to provide a basis to address nutrient deficiencies in fertilization practices.
- To strengthen functioning of Soil Testing Laboratories districts.

- To develop and promote soil test based nutrient management in the districts for enhancing nutrient use efficiency.
- To provide financial assistance to farmers to apply corrective measures for deficiencies and popularising balance and integrated nutrient management practices for their cropping systems.
- To build capacities of district and state level staff and of progressive farmers for promotion of nutrient management practices.

Benefits of the Soil Health Card Scheme

- Under the scheme, soil is tested and a formatted report is provided to the farmers. With this report, they are able to decide which are the crops they should be cultivating and which are the ones they should skip.
- The authorities test the soil on a regular basis and provide a report to farmers. So, farmers need not worry if the nature of the soil changes due to certain factors. Also, they always have updated data about their soil.
- The work of the Government does not stop at listing down measures required to improve the quality of the soil. In fact, the Government also employs experts to help the farmers in carrying out the corrective measures.
- Farmers get a proper soil health record. Farmers can also study the soil management practices and plan the future of their crops and land accordingly. The card gives the farmers a proper idea of which nutrients their soil is lacking, and hence, which crops they should invest in. It also tells the farmers which fertilizers they need.

the scientific information based on the requirements of the farmers.

An SHC is meant to give each farmer soil nutrient status of his/her holding and advise him/her on the dosage of fertilizers and also the needed soil amendments, that she should apply to maintain soil health in the long run.

SHC is a printed report that a farmer is handed over for each of his holdings. It contains the (STLs) through capacity building, involvement of agriculture students and effective linkage with Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR) / State Agricultural Universities.

- To diagnose soil fertility related constraints with standardised procedures for sampling uniformly across States, and analyse and design taluka / block level fertilizer recommendations in targeted business developers, and even helicopter pilots. Initially, the energy companies were overwhelmingly full of engineers and scientists. But over the last decade, the balance has become tilted towards graduates with commercial skills as well.

For example, for a wind energy project, apart from wind energy professionals (and those from the core renewable energy science and engineering), you need meteorologists in order to find good, windy locations. The team also needs to have biologists and ecologists considering the effects of the wind farm on birds and other animals in the environment. Sometimes, you might also need an archaeologist. Then there will be architects to design buildings that can generate their own wind power.

There are lots of new trends coming in as there are thousands of researchers working in this field. Here are a few new trends:

1. Storage of renewable energy: As no renewable sources are found and more power is generated every day, storage of power is necessary to utilise the remaining power for the future.
2. Concept of a microgrid: It is quite new that renewable energy is generated, transmitted, and distributed in microgrids. As there is less amount of complexity, therefore less maintenance trouble.

3. Lesser cost: Types of equipment used for this purpose are less costly. As a result, the cost per unit of energy is going down with the increase in renewable energy.

4. Introduction of AI and IoT: with the application of Artificial Intelligence and the Internet of Things, handling every single thing in a plant is becoming easier. As a result, the efficiency of power generation is pretty high.

5. Data Science & Big Data Analytics in the Renewable Energy Sector: As with many industries, data science, machine learning, and big data analytics are also transforming the energy sector by providing insights to reduce costs and allowing oil producers to adjust to market demands in boom times. The solar industry is rapidly embracing ways to analyze and crunch data in order to lower the cost of solar energy and open up new markets for its technology. In the coming days, Big Data & Analytics will be very crucial for the renewable energy market.

Question: In the 94th edition of 'Mann ki Baat', Prime Minister Narendra Modi talked about how India has become one of the largest countries to generate electricity from solar energy. Solar energy panels are one of the most popular sources of renewable energy which can be utilised both on a small scale as well as large scale. Are you also a user of the same? Do you feel that solar energy has transformed or changed the pace of development of your area/community?

Hardil Noor Singh, New Delhi

Solar Energy

Solar energy can be defined as harnessing the energy of the sun to generate electricity using photovoltaic cells without causing pollution.

Yes we are using solar energy cells in our home to generate our own electricity using the power of sun. Solar energy has transformed the development scenario of not just my area but the country as a whole.

1. It has generated new employment opportunities for the youth in sectors like solar energy equipment installations and solar cells servicing areas too.
2. It has generated new electricity export opportunities along with solar panels export opportunities too for our country thereby earning useful foreign exchange for India.
3. It is a way of generating electricity in sync with nature without harming our Mother Earth thereby keeping in sync with the concept of One Earth.

Apart from these, the way solar energy has transformed the development process of my area / community by making people aware of the concept of ills of burning fossil fuels. This has had a positive behavioural effect with regard to our natural resources. Various government initiatives like PM KUSUM Yojana, Solar panels PLI initiative, One Sun One World One grid, International Solar Alliance etc. are steps in the right direction taken by the government to transform towards a greener and sustainable tomorrow by following the principles of Sustainable development goals in letter and spirit.
